

HOW MUCH DO ZIONISTS CONTROL OUR WORLD...? 3: THE UNITED STATES

By John Armstrong (Email: johnarmst [at] yahoo.com)

Is the American Establishment pro-Israel (i.e. 'Zionist')? Many people think so. Over the decades, the US authorities have certainly taken plenty of steps that look unarguably pro-Israel. But some observers are convinced that each such step is a smokescreen (at best) and that the American Establishment can actually be shown to be anti-Zionist. So, what's the truth?

Commonly, those folks who believe the US to be Zionist point out that America was the first nation on Earth to recognise Israel; America gives a lot of economic and military aid to Israel; and America has a totally disproportionate number of Jews in positions of power in Hollywood and in the US Establishment generally. The clear implication of these facts is that the US is indeed Zionist. But this is a supremely important matter, so let's take a moment to find out how the other side responds to these facts – and whether their answers hold water.

RECOGNITION OF ISRAEL

In May 1948, the Jewish community in Palestine declared the rebirth of the State of Israel. Once the 'Act of Independence' came into effect, America's President Harry Truman took just 11 minutes to officially recognise the new country. This certainly seems Zionist. But context can be everything, so theorists urge us to stand back and look at the wider picture.

Truman took office just before the end of WWII. He inherited a situation where a large number of Jews were living in Palestine and a huge number of Americans felt great sympathy for the Jewish People after the sufferings of Jews during the war. Thus the options open to Truman were very limited because he needed to avoid coming across to his electorate as a monster. He couldn't get away with refusing to allow the Jews in Palestine a measure of self-determination. But right up until the Independence Declaration was made, he and his administration consistently sought to ensure that, whatever the Jews in Palestine ended up with, it fell short of Statehood. Truman's government simultaneously tried to weaken the position of the Jews in Palestine by refusing to sell them arms (and by seizing any consignments they illicitly managed to organise), while at the same time knowing that the Arabs in Palestine were having no difficulty procuring weapons from surrounding Arab nations.

Theorists say there are several non-Zionist reasons why President Truman might have agreed to recognise Israel.

Firstly, Truman may have assumed that this small, newborn state would be destroyed by the armies of the (far larger) surrounding nations who were bound to invade her if she declared independence – and therefore that his recognition of her would do no real harm. And in fact, the day after the Declaration was made, a combined invasion of Israel took place by the armies of Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon, together with forces from Iraq and Saudi Arabia.

Leonard Nimoy was a Jew

(The war raged for months. The American authorities refused to sell Israel so much as a pea-shooter with which to defend herself. But as soon as it became clear that Israel had gained the upper hand and the conflict was going to go her way, the US demanded an end to hostilities – apparently to keep Israel’s gains to a minimum. The US even forced Israel to withdraw from some important territory she had won.)

A second reason why Truman may have decided to recognise Israel was because he wanted America to retain influence over her in the event she wasn't destroyed by the surrounding nations. Such influence would provide the US with many more ways to undermine her. This situation is essentially no different from that of a spy who, while serving one country, pretends to be devoted to an enemy country in order to acquire opportunities to weaken it.

In the months leading up to the Independence Declaration, Truman’s public approval rating was terrible and his Democratic Party was in turmoil. “The president was nearly universally regarded as incapable of winning the general election”. To make absolutely certain there would still be an anti-Zionist in the White House after the election – and indeed to ensure the survival of the Democratic Party – Truman had to win. This meant recognising Israel. Why so? There were quite a few reasons. Here are just some of them.

The bulk of the American electorate were old enough to remember that three-quarters of Palestine had already been given to the Palestinian Arabs when the British carved out the new country of Jordan from it 26 years earlier. (And, since the UN had made it plain that a considerable proportion of the remaining land would also be going to the Palestinian Arabs – no matter what type of ‘Jewish national home’ came into being – and since there were numerous Muslim countries in the world but not a single Jewish one, most Americans felt it reasonable for Israel to happen.)

Many voters were also aware that, when the Allies won the First World War and gained control of Palestine from the Ottoman Empire, they weren’t taking charge of a country but merely a part of southern Syria. As the Arab parliamentarian Abdul Dahamshe confirmed in 1995, “Palestine and Syria are one homeland.” In other words, Americans felt that the creation of Israel would not involve stealing someone else’s country. Quite the reverse. They generally saw it as handing back to the Jewish People a small proportion of their ancestral land.

American actress Jennifer Connelly is Jewish

Plenty of Americans also knew that the area in question was very small, representing just 1% of the land comprising the Arab nations, and that many Palestinian Arabs had only moved to Palestine from other countries in the recent past and could presumably move back if they didn’t like living in Israel and didn’t want to go to Jordan.

Although the US public didn’t believe the Jews in Palestine were without fault in their handling of the pre-independence conflict, they nevertheless felt that Jewish excesses were rare (and that the Arabs had committed more), and that any excesses on the part of the Jews should be seen in the light of the horrors inflicted on Jews in Palestine in the ’20s and ’30s (see Part 1 in my series), not to mention the massacres – many of them at the hands of the thousands of Muslims who joined the SS – during WWII. Additional such factors are given in other articles in this series. (If the American Elite are Zionist, one is entitled to ask why they don’t make truths like these widely known today.)

All in all, there was an “emerging consensus among Americans in support of Jewish statehood”, and Truman was forced to recognise Israel in order to get voted back in.

The actions of Establishment figures at the time prove that it was not the desire of the US Elite to recognise Israel. General George Marshall, the Secretary of State, furiously opposed recognition – and threatened to resign. What’s more, “Marshall’s opposition was shared by almost every member of the ... now legendary group of presidential advisers, later referred to as the Wise Men [men like Averell Harriman, Dean Acheson, Robert Lovett and John J. McCloy]”. And, when news of Truman’s decision reached the American delegation at the UN, “US Ambassador Warren Austin left the building in order not to be present when US recognition of Israel was announced, ... Dean Rusk [who also opposed recognition] subsequently had to rush to the UN to talk US delegation members out of resigning en masse in protest.”

Jerry Lewis was a Jew

Throughout the remaining five years of his presidency (which was an immensely difficult period for Israel), what did Truman do to help her? He forced her to “allow 25,000 [Arab] refugees to return” and he tried to get her to accept 75,000 more. (Few people today are aware that, in the lead up to the invasion of 1948, the Arab nations surrounding Israel had urged the Palestinian Arabs to temporarily vacate Palestine so as to avoid getting in the way of the invading armies. As one refugee put it, “The Arab government told us: Get out so that we can get in. So we got out”. Oddly, the US establishment is quiet on this and many other related points that would help Israel’s image. For just some of these, see www.tinyurl.com/arabrefs.)

MILITARY/ECONOMIC AID

In later years, America did start to provide military equipment and economic assistance to Israel. But some people argue that such acts are not necessarily Zionist.

Selling weapons and giving financial help to Israel results in America enjoying a lot of say over Israel’s actions. For example, if Israel does something to make her borders more defensible, America may well be able to twist Israel’s arm until she reverses what she has done. Take the years leading up to the Suez Crisis of 1956. Egypt’s President Nasser had repeatedly called for the annihilation of Israel; had amassed enormous amounts of military hardware; had started mining Israeli sea-routes; and had sponsored murderous attacks on Israeli civilians by militants operating from the Egyptian-held Gaza Strip. Israel responded by taking control of Gaza and the Sinai. The US President told Israel to withdraw all her troops or “face economic sanctions”. Israel felt she had little choice but to obey.

America permits Israel to defend herself against her sworn enemies if she is attacked (America would otherwise lose all influence over her), but Israel is only allowed to defend herself within very tight limits. When the chance arises to inflict serious damage on an attacking force, America prohibits her from doing so.

Consider the Palestinian Liberation Organisation (PLO). During the ’70s, the PLO moved from Jordan to Lebanon and, by the end of the decade, it comprised a large, increasingly well-equipped army which was terrorizing civilians in the north of Israel through acts including a “massive artillery and mortar attack on the Israeli population of the Galilee”. This was an intolerable situation for Israel, so she invaded Lebanon and, after a few days, managed to corner all the many thousands of PLO militants. Israel was in a position to deal a fatal blow to the PLO, but America stepped in and demanded that Israel not only let all the PLO fighters live but also let them all escape and allow them to leave the country with their personal weapons.

Selling arms to Israel also helps make Israel reliant on the USA. (It also discourages Israel from developing better and more reliable weapons herself.) And, if Israel is reliant on the USA, this gives the latter more control over her. For instance, in 1981 America sold a certain type of military aircraft to Israel. By doing so, and by promising to sell her more, America caused Israel to rely on getting those additional aircraft. The US was then able to manipulate Israel by withholding those planes.

Selling weapons to Israel also helps the US to justify selling game-changing military hardware to Israel's enemies. For example, Ronald Reagan "significantly strengthened the Arabs by selling them some of America's most sophisticated weapons." By way of illustration, in 1981 Reagan sold $8.5 billion worth of equipment, including five AWACS surveillance planes – the most advanced of their kind in the world – to an Arab nation fundamentally opposed to Israel.

Actor and singer Danny Kaye was a Jew

Some theorists point out further that, by creating operational ties between the Pentagon and Israeli forces, America has gained a valuable 'inside track', massively increasing America's scope for undermining Israel in a major conflict. (During the 6-day war, the American Navy – specifically the spy ship USS Liberty – jammed Israeli communications and helped Egypt to obtain intercepted Israeli messages. Such activities were potentially made easier because Israel thought the US was an ally and Israel's military officers were thus prepared to share sensitive information with American counterparts.)

Finally, selling/giving Israel weapons on those occasions when Israel believes she faces a desperate military situation is a way to dissuade her from using tactical nuclear armaments against invading forces. (In this way, America ensures that the armies attacking Israel suffer far fewer losses and have a better chance of winning.) This is what happened during the Yom Kippur war. In a coordinated move, Israel was invaded, on the holiest day in the Jewish calendar, by both Egypt and Syria. During the first few days of the war, when Israel was very much on the back foot – due primarily to America's Henry Kissinger ordering Israel not to act pre-emptively – President Nixon promised to replace Israel's losses in terms of tanks and aircraft so as to keep her from obliterating the invading armies with atomic warheads. Unsurprisingly, Israel didn't actually receive a significant amount of that promised hardware until the tide of the conflict had already turned in her favour. As a sizeable bonus, this equipment enabled the US to coerce Israel into allowing Egypt's 3rd Army, which had been surrounded by Israeli forces and could easily have been wiped out, to instead return home unharmed.

Later, we'll see another, even more telling reason why giving economic aid and selling arms to Israel could be done with an anti-Zionist motive.

MIDDLE EAST OIL

Is Middle East oil the reason for the anti-Israel behaviour of the US Elite? Let's take a look. Until 1970, America produced enough oil domestically to meet all her needs. Thus her anti-Zionist acts prior to that point – e.g. President Johnson's lack of willingness to do anything about the years of grievous provocations by Israel's neighbours, including Egypt's closure of the Straits of Tiran to Israeli shipping, leading up to the 6-day war – seem unlikely to be down to oil.

And even after 1970 there was no actual need for America to import any oil from the Middle East. All she had to do was be prepared to take a slightly more flexible approach to extracting her own oil, or be remotely serious about using alternatives to oil (e.g. coal, natural gas or geothermal energy), or be just a little more willing to buy oil from producers outside the Middle East, and she would have avoided the problem entirely. It starts to look like the US authorities have deliberately engineered things to give the false impression that America is dependent on Middle East oil – presumably so as to provide the Elite with an excuse for anti-Israel actions while still retaining influence over Israel by deceiving her into thinking the US is on her side.

But perhaps the most compelling evidence that the powers-that-be in America have purposely wanted to make the US seem dependent on Middle East oil is the incredibly wasteful way they have prompted the American people to use the commodity.

The 1966 Camaro gave just 5.4 miles per gallon

Consider the car. By neglecting public transport, and by doing virtually nothing during the whole of the 20th Century to support the uptake and development of electric and hybrid cars (practical versions, at least for their time, of both types were available as long ago as 1916), the US Elite made the

One of the many U.S. 'land-yachts' of the 1970s.

American people dependent on petrol-driven automobiles. This fact would not be so bad if the cars being used were efficient, but past US governments allowed gasoline to be sold at insanely low prices, thus encouraging the populace to buy gas-guzzlers (e.g. muscle-cars, 'land-yachts', and SUVs, which were all ridiculously thirsty).

For instance, the 1960 model of the very popular Chevrolet Corvette had an mpg of less than 14; the wildly successful Ford Mustang of 1964 had a rating of just 10mpg; and the Dodge Challenger, released in 1970, gave about 9mpg. Cars that were vastly more efficient were available at the time, offering 40mpg or better, but why would anyone be interested in fuel efficiency when gasoline cost as little as 25c a gallon?

If past US governments had been Zionist, or even if they had valued American independence when it came to energy, they would have taxed fuel much more and would have done much more to encourage car manufacturers to improve the efficiency of their products. Instead, when the Tucker Corporation introduced a brilliant car right back in 1948 that was capable of delivering 35mpg, Truman's government, along with the rest of the US Establishment, did the exact opposite of supporting it. They very unjustly killed it off.

Even after the oil crisis of 1973, when Middle East producers temporarily stopped deliveries to America due to her aforementioned 'support' for Israel during the Yom Kippur War, America's response was pathetic. After all, it wasn't until five full years later that the US authorities organised some sort of "gas-guzzler tax". And the tax in question gave no penalty as long as a car managed just 22.5mpg.

What's more, light trucks and SUVs remained completely exempt from the tax for another 27 years. The 1973 crisis forced the authorities to make it look like they were reacting appropriately, so they tinkered with America's energy strategy. But by the time Reagan became President, the public had largely forgotten the misery of empty gas stations, so he undid even these few weak measures and took steps to ensure the US appeared more reliant on Middle East oil than ever.

Have you ever been edified by an American Jew? If you've been uplifted, for example, by the music of Carole King or Burt Bacharach or Bob Dylan or Irving Berlin or Benny Goodman, then the answer is yes. Or, if you've ever needed a blood transfusion, then thanks to Immuno-hematologist Philip Levine the answer is again yes. Or if you've been inspired by the writings of Henry Miller or the exploits of Harry Houdini, or been cheered by the humour of Adam Sandler or George Burns or Sid Caesar then the answer is yes again. And this list only gives a sampling.

(If the reader thinks I am focusing unfairly on Truman and Reagan, please be aware that these two men are frequently touted by the mainstream media as being among the most pro-Israel Presidents in history. Besides, these men would not have been allowed to get away with all their more extreme anti-Israel acts had the wider US Establishment not wanted them to. Nor would the media praise them today.)

THE SOVIET UNION

If US governments of the past didn't need to keep Middle Eastern countries sweet because of oil, perhaps they needed to keep them sweet to stop them aligning themselves with the Soviet Union? Most conspiracy theorists reject this explanation because they believe the USSR was a product and tool of the same Elite who control the USA. (In support, they would cite material like that found in chapters 10, 11 and 13 of www.tinyurl.com/StillNWO.) But there are other reasons to reject it.

For a start, Soviet expansion into the Middle East was not an issue until after WWII, so how does one explain the lack of practical help for Zionism from the American Establishment in the early decades of the 20th century? For instance, all the way back in 1912, before the Russian Revolution had even taken place, “the Zionist Literary Society approached the Taft administration for an endorsement. [Philander] Knox [the Secretary of State] turned them down flat”. The following year, the US put a committed anti-Zionist in the pivotal role of Ambassador to the Ottoman Empire.

It was the same story after the USSR had begun to implode. Many examples could be given. Here are just some tasters: George Bush Snr, “forced Israel to participate in the Oslo process, which brought the PLO into the West Bank and Gaza”; “President Clinton pressured Israel to give away large sections of land, and he made Jerusalem negotiable”; George Bush Jnr “rescinded $289.5 million of loan guarantees to Israel”; and Secretary of State John Kerry told Israel to stop degrading attack tunnels that Hamas had excavated for the purpose of invading her. (Donald Trump is pro-Israel, but the treatment he gets from the mainstream media should tell us that he is opposed by those people who run the US Establishment.)

THREE REMAINING QUESTIONS

Three questions now arise: (1) Why would the US Establishment be so opposed to Israel? (2) If the US Establishment is so opposed to Israel, why does it have so many Jews in positions of power within it? And (3) If the US Establishment is so opposed to Israel, how come Israel still exists? Some conspiracists argue that there is an oft-ignored fact which answers all three questions. The remainder of this article explains the theory. I will leave readers to determine its merits.

In his autobiography, George Bush Snr wrote, “[At Yale University] I joined Skull and Bones, a secret society; so secret, I can’t say anything more.” This statement suggests a number of things. First, secret societies really do exist (Yale alone has several others). Second, Skull and Bones has some big things to hide. And third, Bush is not a Christian, else he would not protect this Society to this extent. (Some conspiracists are highly amused when told that America is run by Christians. The more visible members of the Elite often claim to be Christians, but their character, behaviour, and private remarks bear no resemblance to any of the men of God described in the New Testament.)

George Bush Snr at Yale University where he joined the ‘Skull and Bones’ society.

Along with George Bush Snr, a number of other people named previously in this article are alumni of Skull and Bones, including Bush's son "Dubya" Bush Jnr, Averell Harriman, Robert Lovett, and John Kerry, as are various further members of the US Establishment.

George Bush Junior. Note his right hand. People often assume that the sign he is making here is in honour of the football team of the University of Texas. For proof that this is not the case, see the online article '9/11 anniversary no place for Devil's salute' by Judi McLeod.

The symbol of Yale's 'Skull and Bones' society. (After their 'Tomb' building was broken into in 1876, it became evident that the "322" seen above refers to their chapter number in a larger organization.)

So, what is Skull and Bones? We get a good idea from studying its initiation ceremony. Each new initiate is taken to a building called "the Tomb"; existing members dress up as the Devil or in hooded skeleton suits; the new man is placed in a coffin, chanted over, given robes with symbols on them, and forced to kiss a skull (something utterly prohibited in the Jewish Old Testament Scriptures). Existing members then act out "a throat-cutting ritual murder". From this and other facts, it is evident that this organisation is, biblically-speaking, the opposite of Judeo-Christian – i.e. it is Satanic.

Bush Snr and Bush Jnr are also devoted members of 'Bohemian Grove', a group that meets each July near San Francisco. Many of the other individuals named in this article were/are members or affiliates of it, including Taft, McCloy, Acheson, Roosevelt, Truman, Rusk, Clinton, Reagan and Nixon, plus a huge number of other members of the US Establishment.

What is 'Bohemian Grove' all about? We can gain an insight by considering the centrepiece of the two-week event. It is a ritual, led by a man wearing a hooded red cape and assisted by men who wear black and red robes. The ceremony involves the worship of, and prayers to, an enormous graven image (something banned by the Jewish scriptures). The image is called “the owl of Bohemia”. To Bohemians, the owl is a depiction of Molech, a pagan ‘deity’ (whereas in the Old Testament Jewish scriptures, the owl is “unclean” and represents a devil). The event concludes with a mock (hopefully) human sacrifice by fire to Molech, complete with the sound of blood-curdling screams. According to the Jewish scriptures, such behaviour is the opposite of godly – i.e. biblically-speaking it is Satanic.

We are told that events at Bohemian Grove do not involve actual human sacrifices, but this was certainly not always the case. The above photo shows a young black man being lynched in readiness for a Grove ritual in 1909.

The symbol of the Bohemian Club (the current name of the group which meets at Bohemian Grove) is an owl. See more owl logos overleaf.

Finally, several people cited above as being part of ‘Bohemian Grove’, including Taft, Truman, Johnson, Clinton, Roosevelt, and Reagan, are/were also members of another secretive organisation. Low-level initiates of this particular ‘fraternity’ are deliberately kept in the dark about the true nature and purpose of the organisation so, in order to spare their blushes, I have decided against naming it here. However, it can readily be identified if one simply Googles the following quote by a revered past member who tells us that, when a man reaches an advanced enough level in the organisation, “The seething energies of Lucifer are in his hands.” (As any sensible reading of a soundly-translated Bible will show, Lucifer is another name for Satan.) Other people named in this article who are/were also members of this Satanic fraternity include Marshall, Austin, Knox, and Ford. Indeed, many men in the US Establishment are known to have joined.

Researching other institutions beloved by the Elite reveals that they too are, according to the Biblical definition, Satanic or are fronts for Satanic organisations.

The grounds of the US Congress appear to be in the shape of an owl.

No-one is suggesting that every member of the US Elite is a Satanist. But theorists argue that members of the US Elite do, directly or indirectly, follow the orders of Satanists – whether through fear or greed or blackmail or naivete. (In 2005, there were “approximately 4 million practising Satanists in America”, quite apart from all those people who follow the orders of Satanists.)

We can now answer our three questions. Since the top echelons of the US Elite are Satanists, they believe they will defeat God if they can ‘break the Word of God’. They know that the Bible prophesies the return of Jesus Christ to Jerusalem in a reborn Israel (e.g. see Zechariah 14:1-4 & Ezekiel 11:17). Therefore the Elite believe they will win if they can destroy Israel or at least force her to give up the old city of Jerusalem. (Whether you or I believe any of this is immaterial here. It is what Satanists believe that matters.)

Hidden in the corner of the $1 bill is what seems to be an owl. But see overleaf for another way of viewing it.

Why are there so many Jews in the US Establishment? The Elite want a large number of racial Jews in prominent positions for several reasons. Jews act as a smokescreen to protect the identities of the institutions which truly pull the strings. Jews in high-profile positions also make it look like the US Establishment is pro-Jew (this is useful in order to influence Israel and to mislead the sizeable Jewish population in America). And they make it appear, to the vast majority of those ordinary folks who have discerned the existence of an evil US Establishment, that it is Zionist. Such folks will automatically therefore oppose Israel.

The Elite make sure that any Jew they place in a position of power regarding Israel is anti-Zionist. So, for instance, Franklin Roosevelt gave important roles to Herbert Lehman, Bernard Baruch and Samuel Rosenman. All were Jews but all were anti-Zionist. (Lehman and Baruch, at least, were also members of a Satanic fraternity.) And Henry Kissinger, who has done much to jeopardize Israel, was given tremendous influence in several US administrations, especially Johnson's, Nixon's and Ford's, partly because he was an anti-Zionist Jew, but also because he was a dedicated member of Bohemian Grove and other Satanic organisations.

Turn the $1 upside down and the 'owl' suddenly appears to look instead like a partially hidden Skull and Bones image.

It is very rare for a Zionist Jew to be allowed into the Establishment. Such a person is always a mere token and is kept in a harmless role unless or until he can be coerced into doing nothing significant to damage the Elite's plans for Israel.

It is true that some American Jews are extremely wealthy, but their very love of money tends to lead them away from a love for Israel – not least because the Satanic Elite are powerful enough to ruin them if they take Israel's side. (Indeed, their wealth may well emanate from their willingness to oppose Israel.) As Chaim Weizmann wrote, when recalling the strenuous efforts by him and others to lobby the Western powers to re-establish Israel, "rich and powerful Jews were for the most part against us". This is still the case today.

As for the many Jews in positions of power in the media and Hollywood, see article 2 in this series for proof that their net effect is to cause Zionism great harm.

Finally, if the US Elite is so opposed to Israel, how come she still exists? Why didn't the US simply invade her in 1948 when she declared independence?

According to the Bible, frontal assaults against Israel only succeed when the Jews in Israel are estranged from their God. Satanists know this. After the Holocaust, the Elite doubted if a frontal assault would work, so they didn't attempt it – because had they done so and failed, the game would have been up. Israel would have realised the US Establishment was her mortal enemy and would not have given the US the influence necessary to destroy her from within. (The Arabs were allowed to attack Israel either to gauge Israel's spiritual state or in case a frontal assault succeeded.)

After Israel's victories in head-on battles in 1948, 1956, 1967 and 1973, the Elite became wholly convinced that such an approach would not work unless Israel was first 'distanced from her God'. So that's what they do. For example, their agents infiltrate Israeli society to promote immorality and lack of faith in the God of the Bible. The Elite provoke terrorist attacks against Israel, and force Israel to make concessions, so as to lead Israelis to question God's existence – or at least God's support for Israel. (The Elite also dissuade Christians from praying for Israel. A key way they do this is by making Israel look unjustifiably bad in the eyes of Christian leaders. George Soros, an affiliate of Bohemian Grove, provides a great deal of funding for this endeavour.) Suddenly the military and economic aid makes perfect sense. The US Establishment wants to discourage Israel from relying on God and to stop her from looking to God for rescue.

Once the Elite feel they have done enough damage to Israel's spiritual foundations, the frontal assault will come.

Just some of the many Establishment figures in the US who have flashed the “twin-horned salute”. The pictures above show the Mayor of Washington Marion Berry, Vice President Dan Quayle, and Vice President Dick Cheney.
