This chapter is planned to be about setting up the database so that as well as being a story the novel also links to information that will hopefully be helpful in getting localizable sentences into use in real life.

The current idea is to have a button as in Chapter 37, but this time the button will link to another PDF (Portable Document Format) document in the same webspace, and that document can have a button ready to link to other PDF documents in the same webspace if they become available, without Chapter 78 needing to be updated.
