

Localizable Sentences The Novel, is written, typeset, exported as Portable Document Format documents and published in eighty-one chapters by the author.

The novel has been published as chapters were written and produced from June 2016 to February 2019, chapters not always being written and produced in the order that they are in the novel, yet no chapter numbers have been changed and so there were often gaps in the story available at any particular time.

This practice has led to the publication of version 2 versions of Chapter 22, Chapter 50 and Chapter 77. Whilst such version 2 publication would probably not have been necessary had the novel been published only after the completion of its writing, nevertheless the author has enjoyed publishing the novel as writing proceeded over a period of over two years.

Yet the real world research project that is the basis for the science fiction parts of the novel has been in existence since 2009 and some of the ideas related to it go back some years earlier. The author hopes that the novel will be a catalyst for a real world implementation of the scientific ideas that are applied in the novel.

The main font used for the text, as here, is Goudita SF, a Venetian-style font.
