

This is the first document in a collection of three documents all derived from the source document that was used to produce the document that is named as

Localizable Sentences The Novel Experiment after Chapter 37

in a file that has the file name

localizable_sentences_the_novel_experiment_after_chapter_037.pdf

The name of this file is locse_experiment_37_2_1_of_3

in a file that has the file name

locse_experiment_37_2_1_of_3.pdf

The intention is to indicate that it is the second experiment after Chapter 37, document 1 of 3, while keeping file names fairly short for clarity as they are to be used in links.

The experiment splits the original document into three documents. The first document is only this page. The second document is the index page of the simulated webspace together with the pages for the localizable sentences for the seasons and for weather. The third document is the pages for the localizable sentences for colours.

So clicking the button should lead to another Portable Document Format document.

The link is a short link to the same directory, not a general link on the web. Part of the experiment is to test whether it will work both on the web and in local storage on a computer.

